Scholarship & a Free Society

June 23-29, Towson University, Baltimore, MD

Be part of conversations that will define the intellectual agenda for the coming decade. Explore the future of classical liberal academic thought and its applications to society through interdisciplinary lectures and peer presentations.

See how leading academics across disciplines apply classical liberal principles to their research, and get inspiration to take your work to the next level.

- Early-Stage Graduate Students: Gain insight into building a successful dissertation and research agenda. Develop relationships with top faculty and future co-authors.
- Late-Stage Graduate Students: Present your current research for peer review and hone future research ideas.
